- Today's new case is travel-related.
- Physical distancing and household bubble requirements will also apply to outings (at restaurants, etc.) as the province is opening up further on Friday, June 5.
- If you do not feel well, it is critically important that you do not go out, and instead follow established procedures as stated on NS website to determine what steps you should take next.
- With new regulations in place, additional delays/waiting times are to be expected. People should be patient.
- Restaurants and other businesses selling alcohol who were offering delivery while NS was closed can continue to do so.
