Québec resserre ses mesures, retour du télétravail

Afin de se préparer à l'arrivée du variant Omicron, beaucoup plus contagieux, Québec demande dès maintenant aux employeurs de rétablir à 100 % le télétravail. Plus de vaccinateurs sont recherchés afin d'accélérer l'administration des troisièmes doses. Et des tests rapides seront rapidement distribués à l'ensemble de la population dans 1900 pharmacies à travers le Québec. Par ailleurs, le port du masque dans les aires communes des résidences privées pour aînés redevient obligatoire dès maintenant. Des analyses seront menées dans les prochains jours afin de déterminer précisément à quel point le variant Omicron est présent.

P.E.I. to impose new restrictions after omicron variant presence confirmed

Omicron case connected with St. Francis Xavier University outbreak

Posted: Dec 14, 2021

P.E.I. is implementing a suite of new COVID-19 restrictions after the province confirmed its first case of the highly contagious omicron variant.

Chief Public Health Officer Dr. Heather Morrison said in a briefing Tuesday the case has been associated with an outbreak at St. Francis Xavier University in Nova Scotia.

Morrison said she expects more omicron cases to be confirmed in the upcoming days. Schools will remain open for the next three days prior to the Christmas break, but Morrison said the province will be making a recommendation in early January on whether schools will reopen as planned. <https://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/prince-edward-island/pei-covid-19-pandemic-briefing-1.6284945>

Physical distancing and capacity restrictions are back in Nova Scotia as the province continues to battle an outbreak of COVID-19 at St. Francis Xavier University and the first confirmed cases of the omicron variant in the province.

Forty previously reported cases have been confirmed as omicron variant cases by the National Microbiology Lab in Winnipeg. They all came from the Antigonish area, Nova Scotia Chief Medical Officer of Health Dr. Robert Strang said Monday. He added that delta variant cases were also identified as part of the St. FX outbreak.
