P.E.I. brings back quarantine requirement for people arriving in province

Starting Wednesday at 8 a.m. all people arriving on P.E.I. will have to self-isolate for four days.

Premier Dennis King made the announcement at a public briefing Tuesday.

Each person arriving will be given two rapid tests: one for day two and one for day four. If both tests are negative, the person may come out of isolation. Chief Public Health Officer Dr. Heather Morrison announced 29 new cases on the Island, making for 112 active cases as of 8 a.m. AT Tuesday. Morrison said 18 of the cases announced last week were the Omicron variant.
